Subject: SHS Launch Event in Shanghai

Plans are being made to have a "launch event" in Shanghai officially recognizing the collaboration between the University of Colorado and Fudan University on the Shanghai Health Study. This is being done to meet expectations of the Chinese culture for such projects. It is tentatively scheduled for Dec 8, 9, or 10. You can read the details as they currently are known in the note below. Shell should consider whether we want to send someone to represent Shell and begin the contact. I would welcome suggestions and then can work with Sarah and Lauren to coordinate.

Regards,

Patsy

Importance: High

Message forwarded from Lynn Russo, Chair of the BHRC Communications Committee:

Rich Irons recently communicated about his plans for the launch event. I think this gives us enough information to begin planning our own organization's participation in the event. Please let Matt know who in your company should receive an invitation to attend. And let me know if you have any questions.

The launch under discussion is to celebrate the laboratory's construction, start-up and operation, making it an event marking the collaboration between Fudan and Colorado. The companies' role is a supporting one--as a funder rather than a collaborator. The dates being considered are December 8, 9 or 10 and the event would be in Shanghai. Other details--size, type of event (reception or dinner or some of each)--are still being worked out.

However, it looks like the most senior officials involved are likely to be

Vice Mayor Yan Xiaodo, a Vice President from Fudan (or perhaps the President), and the U.S. Consul General.

Patrick Beatty has indicated he can attend on those dates, representing the Consortium. Other company representation is up to each consortium member to decide. As one example, I think ExxonMobil will have someone from our Beijing office attend and will not send anyone from the U.S.
