LETTER BOX GETS DRAW DECISION

May 4, 1926.
Peninsula Daily Herald:
In a recent issue of the Herald I saw a communication from the city manager stating that the unsightly board fence along the drive was just completed at the foot of the government reservation was to be removed, and in its place a buttressed well built along this roadway. There are many associations in connection with this spot that are not generally known. Years ago this was the favorite spot where Robert Louis Stevenson was wont to go and many of his memoirs of Monterey conceived here. He loved the beauty and environment of this spot. In one of his writings he mentioned the little boats nodding to the waves.

One Round Carmen's
Carmen let Springfield do the best work and meet him with either ducks and body lobs or straight lefts to the jaw and rights to the chin. Springfield, the eighth round and Carmen pulled really dangerous stuff and he had the house cycling for a finish. But Carmen could not put on the finish. Springfield always got out of the fight, place to come back with more punning to Carmen's face and body. Springfield undoubtedly would have been able to K. O. Carmen if the latter had come out of his defensive tactics and fought. The decision satisfied the fans.

Dement, Stone Fast
The sensational event between Harry Dement of Monterey and George Stone of San Francisco proved a fast and furious affair and the horse was evenly divided as to who had the shade. Stone had a promising style to start with. Dement let him work himself out on the circle and in about the fourth round Dement "saw" and gave George a run for his money.

Short, Sweet Song
The curtain raiser did not last long. It was slated to go four rounds and lasted one-half. Joe Vagas of San Jose sailed into Charles Lee of Salinas, substituting for Sammy Bell of the Presidio, and with a rain of head blows lay Charles out for the count and a short notice in his corner. Sammy Bell, who was to fight Vagas, was out with a cut over his eye. Bud Springer of Monterey proved a whirlwind mow for John Quaglio of San Jose in the other preliminary. Quaglio was game and stayed with it until the final bell, though he proved no match for the local boy and received a bad beating. Springer's knees put Quaglio to his knees several times during the fight.

Grove Grammar Assembly Stated

Parents and friends of the pupils are cordially invited to attend the assembly. In addition to the play the regular exercises will be held.

Del Mon Hotel was built in 1880. In 1891 the railroad was extended from Monterey to Pacific Grove, but for 10 years previous to this there was no fence along the railroad and all the tourists used to stop and view the bay at this point. Also the little boats and flocks of sea gulls and other marine fowls, and the beautiful landscape beyond the bay and hills encircling Monterey.

Once I had Andrew Carnegie and his party in a big red tallapo, and he mentioned about reading Stevenson's memoirs written while he lived at Monterey, and recited some of the lines. Mr. Carnegie's party was greatly enthused and said that the scenery really equalled the most beautiful Southern European scenery equal to the Bay of Naples and Riviera, at this point.

When automobile travelers visit and pass through our town, now that the fence is going to be removed, the first glimpse that they point make a lasting impression many of the younger ones never having seen the ocean before.

No doubt as time goes on this point will be marked by electric lights for night promenading.

dollars into the communities and many thousands of visitors.

That is precisely the situation that must be faced—and it is practically settled already. If we cannot determine upon a permanent policy for ourselves, we will fight by this time next year, or sooner, that another community in another part of California has determined it for us.
