Do you know whether Ford specifies to the dealerships what after-market products they use? For instance, in St. Louis, it has been discovered that they use Mendenhal for some of their after-market brake linings and disc pads that are manufactured in St. Louis. Are you familiar with the name Mendenhal?

A I don't recall that name, no.

Q Does Ford Motor Company have a policy of specifying which after-market suppliers that Ford dealerships use in their service department?

A I do not know.

Q Who would know that in the Ford Motor Company organizatic could you tell me that?

A I don't know that either.

Q Okay. Now, you have indicated Ford Motor Company purchased, from suppliers for the after-market, brake linings and brake pads from Bendix, Raybestos-Manhattan and Abex, is that --

MR. STEELE: I object. He did not indicate that.

MR. TRYNIECKI: I join in the objection.

Q (BY MR. FLOYD) In the Answers to Interrogatories, in the after-market, you have listed Bendix, R/M, and Abex as after-market suppliers, is that correct?

A I don't know that.