Dear Doctor Silbiger:

I am pleased to learn that you and the management of the Company referred to in our correspondence, have considered the potential hazard of lead absorption in connection with the operation of the plant in advance of any difficulty. We shall be prepared to consider the matter of procedure when you are ready.

There is one point that leads me to comment further, however. It is advantageous in connection with a new operation, to know the initial status of the workmen as a base line for further observations. You may find it feasible and desirable to have such information, and if so, we can make suggestion as to how this may best be done when the time comes. This obviously, is a matter for you and the manager to decide.

Cordially yours,

Robert A. Kehoe, M. D.
