Of Flora Myers Engle, the Musical Leader, says: "Flora Myers Engle, soprano, sang with a voice of great brilliance and beauty, and with the poise of one who understands herself no less than her work; singing with the utmost finish and feeling as well as with admirable vocal qualities."

Trains Tell the Story

THROUGH burning heat of the prairie or alkali dust of the desert, up into summit snows; then down into the warm valley and along the coast rush the Western trains. In the regulated temperature of the cars, passengers marvel over the changing scenes, but never think of the extreme test to which these rapid changes of temperature subject the brightly varnished coaches in which they ride.

In 1886 HUETER's Superior Varnishes were used by the Central and Southern Pacific Companies on the finest trains of that day. There have been radical improvements in railway equipment since the eighties, but HUETER's Varnishes—substantially the same—are still used by these companies, as well as by the Pullman Company. Varnishes that stood the grueling test on trains creeping across the desert and over the Divide in 1886, needed no improvement to endure unharmed the same journey by Limited schedule in 1924.

HUETER's Varnishes are being used by the Pacific Electric, Los Angeles Railway, San Francisco, Sacramento Short Line, Oakland Traction Company, San Francisco Market Street Railway, the Key Route System, Oakland, and other important electric lines. They have also been used for years on the largest civic and commercial buildings in the west.

These "superior" varnishes meet the needs of the individual user as faithfully as they have served the railroads. Their use assures protection for your automobile or the floors, woodwork and furniture in your home.
