Dear Hank:

We are very much disturbed by your report that the Southern Production Company plans to rerun leaded gasoline on a routine basis. We would appreciate a more detailed report explaining the necessity for continuously running leaded gasoline.

We would also appreciate a flow diagram of their complete process showing where leaded gasolines will be introduced into the system and the temperatures and pressures that will be encountered.

We have asked for the foregoing information in order that we can give as complete a story as possible to our Medical Department. We believe we should have their opinion before writing anything to our customer or their contractors regarding the hazards involved.

Very truly yours,

L. R. Fleck
