Long time is needed for drying plaster

Be sure that several months elapse before you attempt to finish those new plastered walls with oil paint or wallpaper. They must have time to permit drying out.

Lime and moisture in the plaster can damage the paints and fade the wallpaper colors. Lime in plaster can be neutralized by washing with a solution of zinc sulphate in water in the proportion of one pound to the gallon.

This should be given ample time before drying. Before decorating, the tiny crystals that will have formed should be brushed off.
