A Well, I don't think in the early '70s he was very well-known in asbestos research. He was a pathologist. He sort of got into it in the early '80s.

Q Let me rephrase then.

Was he well-known in pathology circles?

A Oh, sure.

Q That is one of the reasons you probably went there?

A Absolutely, lung pathology.

Q So you went to the University of Vermont and started doing asbestos research.

Then I gather at some point after that, if I am correct, you went to Wales to work with Dr. Wagner?

A You have that twisted.

Q I am sorry.

A I think the -- Mr. Shellenberger asked me to describe it, so would you like it straight or do you want to ask another question?

Q Let me ask you another question.
