A spokesman said reports from the landings were "very light" and that only two Japanese were killed at Dumta, the western anchor of the new Allied front on northern New Guinea, stretching 160 miles eastward to Aitape.

60,000 JAPS ISOLATED

Front dispatches estimated that 60,000 Japanese troops were trapped in the isolated area of British New Guinea, east of Hollandia, with Allied forces closing in from both sides.

In the Aitape area, 125 miles below Hollandia, a spokesman revealed that a total of 842 Japanese had been killed up to Tuesday, and it was reported that the enemy forces were continuing to withdraw over inland trails toward Wewak, 85 miles to the east.

An authority at headquarters believed the Japanese would put up stronger opposition in the northwestern section of Dutch New Guinea, where they were reported strengthening their forces at Schouten islands in Geelvink bay, 450 miles west of Hollandia, with naval aircraft.

Allied bombers have raided the Geelvink bay bases almost daily in the past week, and while the communique did not mention any new attacks in that area, it disclosed further assaults on Wakde island and the nearby coastal sections, 110 miles west of Hollandia.

AIRDROME POUNDED

Medium bombers on two successive days bombed and strafed Wakde airdrome and the mainland coast from Sarmi to Takar, destroying two grounded enemy planes and damaging several barges.

Liberator, Boston and Mitchell bombers of the Fifth air force continued their neutralization offensive against Wewak, in British New Guinea, with a new attack Wednesday when they dropped 183 tons of explosives on supply dumps and buildings around the four battered airdromes.

Solomons-based medium and light bombers again raided Rabaul, New Britain, hitting Tobera runway and supply areas with 129 tons of bombs. Motor vehicles were destroyed and three barges damaged. Two American planes were shot down by enemy anti-aircraft fire.

Night air patrols bombed Kavieng and other targets on New Ireland, while naval patrols damaged a coastal vessel and sank an enemy barge off New Hanover.

British Leaders Start Peace Term Talks

LONDON. —(AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill and British dominion leaders have concluded the military phase of their empire conference, informed sources said, and have begun formal discussion of peace terms and the proposed punishment of Adolf Hitler and other Nazi chieftains.

The broad outline of the armistice terms to be granted Germany already has been discussed by the Allied advisory board in London, which has kept the British, American and Russian governments fully informed on its progress.

Churchill, however, was understood to have sought the views of the dominions to insure complete harmony between London and the commonwealth nations.

Ninth Service Command Supply Depot at Pomona

POMONA. —(AP)—Pomona ordnance base, located on the Los Angeles county fair grounds, will be used as a supply depot and repair point by the Ninth service command under the jurisdiction of Camp Hann, army officials said today.

Lt. Col. John M. Henderson, jr., will remain in command of the base, formerly used in connection with the desert training program.

Soldiers now stationed there will be released for other duty as soon as the U.S. civil service commission employs the hundreds of civilian mechanics, clerks and laborers needed to turn out the repair work, officials said.

A new source of oil is reported from Brazil, where alligators have been processed to provide lubricants suitable for motors.

REDS POUND SEVASTOPOL

MOSCOW. —(AP)— Large forces of Soviet bombers sent tons of bombs crashing down on German and Romanian troops jammed into Sevastopol Wednesday night, a Russian communique reported last night, in what may be a prelude to the final Red army assault on the Crimean stronghold.

Many artillery batteries were silenced by the rain of bombs, and 10 big fires were started among military dumps and in the railway junction area. A number of explosions, including two large ones, was observed.

"Heavy losses" were inflicted on the enemy, the communique said. All planes returned safely from the attack, the 13th major raid carried out by the Red air force on the central and southern fronts in 16 nights.

Russian planes also bombed enemy troop concentrations on the Stanislawow front southeast of Lwow in old Poland, shooting down 13 enemy aircraft in combat. The Germans attacked on a number of sectors on this front, but everywhere were thrown back to their initial positions with a total loss of nearly 800 men.

You Paid $250 in Taxes, Mr. Average Californian

SACRAMENTO. —(AP)—The average California resident directly or indirectly paid more than $250 in federal, state and local government taxes during 1943, the state board of equalization has reported.

The tax bill for the year for all governmental agencies in the state totaled $1,985,422,000, the board said, an average of $256.58 for each man, woman and child in the state.

The board said that total taxes paid in the state more than doubled from 1941 to 1943. The total was $942,296,000 in 1941 for a per capita average of $133.23. The average did not quite double in the two years because of population increases.

Federal taxes accounted for almost two-thirds of total collections last year, the board said. Federal levies were $1,300,228,000, the state collected $349,194,000, while counties, cities and school and special districts took in $318,000,000.
