Today on Climate Beat . . .

. . . we went to court, reporting that California and New Mexico are launching a lawsuit over the Bureau of Land Management's move to "postpone" several requirements in its rule limiting emissions of the potent greenhouse gas methane from oil and gas equipment on federal land.

In personnel news, the Trump administration appears to be getting closer to nominating Kathleen Hartnett White, a prominent climate skeptic and supporter of domestic energy production, to lead the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

And on the regulation front, the Department of Energy has issued a request for information on its test procedure rule for energy efficiency standards for air compressors, a move that signals it is likely to rewrite the Obama-era regulation.
