A Mr. Boeschenstein knew everything.
Q Well, he certainly knew about that; isn't that correct?
A Well, he was one of the smartest gents that ever worked down the pike.
Q Well, he was aware of it, yes or no?
A Yes.
Q And he was president of Owens-Corning?
A Right.
Q And chief executive officer?
A Right.

BY MR. SMITH:
Q Would it be fair to say, Mr. Ames, that it was known that in the industry back in the time that you were employed by Owens-Corning that there were hazards to the persons working in the plants manufacturing asbestos-containing insulation of possibly getting asbestosis?
A Working in the plants?
Q That is correct.
