Dear Doctor:

One of our examining physicians recently examined this claimant who claims to have had two attacks of lead poisoning. The symptoms which he now presents and the onset of his attacks of illness makes the diagnosis and disability somewhat questionable. In discussing this claim with the examiner it was suggested that the claimant be referred to you for examination and opinion. Before presenting the claim to the commission we would like to know if you can personally make this examination and file a report in the near future. On one occasion a claimant was referred to you for examination and the report submitted by an assistant was found to be unsatisfactory in that the claim had been referred for your personal inspection.

Kindly advise whether or not this will be agreeable to you in order that the file may be sent for your inspection and the claimant notified that he is to report to you.

Very truly yours,

W. E. O'Leary M.D.
Medical Investigator.
