RE: Your Question on Use of Asbestos Insulation

We do not recommend any further use of asbestos insulation, except in rare, non-regular occasions where no substitute can be found. Adequate ventilation, engineered means of preventing dust exposure, and approved dust respirators should be used in such instances. Remember that in all but brief, non-regular, carefully protected uses, all provisions of 1910.93(a) must be strictly followed.

Among other sources of supply we suggest contacting Pfizer's Quigley Division for asbestos substitute.
