Hi Samantha,

We would very much appreciate you providing an alternative representative from EPA to speak at our Mid-Year Energy Forum. The session is on Tuesday, Oct 17th, in DC. Thank you very much for your help!

9:00 am - 10:30 am	General Session: A New Sheriff in Town: The Trump Administration's Dramatic New Approach to Energy and Environmental Policy President Trump has recently announced that the US will withdraw from the Paris Climate Accord, and has further issued a series of Executive Orders requiring EPA to reconsider and/or revise major Obama era regulations intended to combat global warming such as the Clean Power Plan and methane emission reductions. EPA Administrator Pruitt, an opponent of many existing EPA climate, air and water emission control strategies prior to his appointment, is actively implementing this new agenda. For its part, the DOE is studying measures to support existing base-load generation, including nuclear and fossil-fired plants, in view of their asserted beneficial effects for grid reliability and fuel diversity. The Administration, moreover, has made statements supporting a revival of the coal industry. This panel will review the anticipated extent and substance of these developments, and how they may change the energy industry and markets in coming years.
