Dear Jim:

By way of clearing up one point in my barrage of June 27th, the paper by Manville and Moser was that on "Recent Developments in the Care of Workers Exposed to Lead" which was read at Buffalo in April 1955 and appeared in the Archives last November. Dr. Glassel's bracketing it with Shiels et al. as a recent paper threw me off, but I was stupid not to recognize it.

It does not impress me as too conclusive a presentation and I know next to nothing about the authors. I assume that the patients were workers at the plant of the Willard Storage Battery Company at Portland, where Dr. J. Kimball Page was in charge when I went there a couple of years ago, so Dr. Manville is a mystery to me, and of Dr. Moser I know only that he is a chemist employed by the Oregon State Board of Health.

I note that Dr. Bersworth comes in for a share of the thanks, and I'm sure that Dr. Norman Karr, Director of Clinical Research of the Riker Laboratories, was happy to see himself referred to as "Norma."

Sincerely,

MB:GW
