FN101. In that respect, we note that, at the oral hearing before us, Canada stated that it believed that the parties were in agreement that consideration of consumers' tastes and habits "would add nothing" to the determination of "likeness".

FN102. We have already noted the health risks associated with chrysotile asbestos fibres in our consideration of properties (supra, para. 114).

FN103. We recognize that consumers' reactions to products posing a risk to human health vary considerably depending on the product, and on the consumer. Some dangerous products, such as tobacco, are widely used, despite the known health risks. The influence known dangers have on consumers' tastes and habits is, therefore, unlikely to be uniform or entirely predictable.

FN104. Supra, footnote 58, para. 115.

FN105. Ibid., para. 120. We added that "studies of cross-price elasticity ... involve an assessment of latent demand" (para. 121).
