Ethyl Gasoline Corporation,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:-

I am interested in an industrial case in which an individual is claiming compensation for lead poisoning of the gums, which resulted, he states, from siphoning gasoline with his mouth from a feed line of a tractor. He states that this occurred upon two or three occasions during one afternoon, and that pain, tenderness and swelling developed in the gums within twenty-four hours thereafter. He alleges that this condition caused subsequent loss of several teeth.

I would greatly appreciate any data which your medical department might be able to furnish relative to susceptibility of individuals to lead poisoning from handling Ethyl gasoline.

Very truly yours,

Dr. C. D. Moore M.D.
