

Iowa League of Cities v EPA

Desk Statement

November 19, 2013

Statement:

The Eighth Circuit's interpretation in Iowa League of Cities v EPA of EPA's regulations relating to blending and bypass is legally binding within the Eighth Circuit. Outside of the Eighth Circuit, EPA will continue to work with States and communities with the goal of finding solutions that protect public health and the environment while recognizing economic constraints and feasibility concerns, consistent with the Agency's existing interpretation of the regulations.

The United States. So our Appellate Court in a EPA order to regulate the water treatment process is in violation of the guidelines of the Clean Water Act (33 USC, 1361-1362).

If the EPA is to be held liable for its actions in the construction of the water treatment plant, it is necessary to determine if the EPA is in violation of the Clean Water Act.
The EPA is not liable for its actions in the construction of the water treatment plant because it is not a "person" under the Clean Water Act.

An act of a person is not a crime if it is done in the exercise of a duty. The EPA is not liable for its actions in the construction of the water treatment plant because it is not a "person" under the Clean Water Act.

Meeting Notes
