Dear Bob,

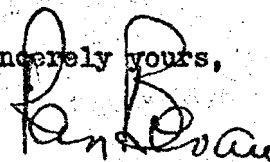

Dodds, Cassells, the Shell people and myself met together in this office a short while ago to discuss results of the urine determinations at Ardrossan. It was agreed by all that whilst the figures were very high, too much importance should not be attached to this until a more complete picture had been obtained. It was therefore agreed that samples would be obtained from the same group of people, at regular intervals, over a period of some months.

It appears that Ardrossan does not fill gasoline all the time, and in fact, at the moment lubricating oil is being packaged there. In view of this, we should be able to obtain, over a period of months, a complete picture of the variations in lead content in the urine amongst the same group of people when handling gasoline and lubricating oil.

I will keep you advised of the results as they are obtained.

With all best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

T. R. A. Bevan.
