Curry Parent Teacher's Association held a very enthusiastic meeting yesterday afternoon at the school and have launched a number of worthy plans for the coming year.

Miss Marion Grey, district school nurse, gave an interesting talk on "How to Prevent sickness" and also told members of the Association how to prevent contagious diseases among the school children.

Committees were appointed to investigate the libraries for books suitable to the school children and to make their reports so that these books may be recommended to parents. If the mothers will arrange a certain time to read to their children there will be marked advancement in the literary line. The next meeting of the Curry P. T. A. will be on September 19th and all members are urged to keep the date in mind and attend the meeting.
