DEEP DIVE -- "7 Sailors Emerged From Diverse Backgrounds to Pursue a Common Cause," by NYT's Dave Phillips: "The seven sailors who died when the destroyer Fitzgerald collided with a container ship last weekend were a snapshot of the nation they served: an immigrant from the Philippines whose father served in the Navy before him; a poor teenager whose Guatemalan family came north eager for opportunity; a native of Vietnam hoping to help his family; a firefighter's son from a rural crossroads in the rolling green fields of Virginia. The roll call of the dead also illustrated the degree to which the military relies on recruits from immigrant communities around the country." <http://nyti.ms/2sRq1YP>
