Dr. R. A. Kehoe

Dear Dr. Kehoe:

In accordance with our understanding, I endeavored to discuss the matter of proportioning gasoline with Major Starrett of the Quartermasters Corps in Washington this week. I was unable to locate him and found that his activity, namely, gathering such information, had been discontinued and his force disbanded. Also, I was informed that Major Starrett was taken off active service and put on detached service.

I think it quite likely that the O.P.M. may write a letter to those companies who were requested to furnish information, informing them whether or not the data is still desirable.

For the present, I think we can safely let the matter rest.

Yours very truly,

Oscar Lewis
