

To: Jackson, Ryan[jackson.ryan@epa.gov]
From: American Enterprise Institute
Sent: Thur 7/6/2017 10:08:35 AM
Subject: AEI Today: President Trump's trip to Poland is a chance to seize the moment

President Trump's trip to Poland is a chance to seize the moment

AEI's daily publication of independent research, insightful analysis, and scholarly debate

Reuters

President Trump's trip to Poland is a chance to seize the moment

Gary J. Schmitt and James M. Cunningham | AEIdeas

President Trump's first visit to Poland has been called a softball — a chance to visit a friendly, right-leaning nation and receive a warm welcome. But that understates the visit's potential. More than just an easy stopover, it's a chance for the United States to strengthen military ties with central and eastern Europe. The Poles appear willing to support an even larger NATO presence. America should jump at the opportunity.

AEI

60-second take: Narco crime is a serious threat to the Americas

Roger F. Noriega | AEI video

Transnational organized crime presents a serious threat to the United States and the rest of the Western Hemisphere. In Mexico, drug cartels have latched onto globalization as a way to move their product across borders and launder their assets through the global financial system. AEI Visiting Fellow Roger Noriega details the threats the US faces to its border, its communities, and its financial system — and what can be done to combat them.

Reuters

What Xi Jinping's censorship says about the future of China

Weifeng Zhong | Foreign Affairs

In post-Mao China, censorship of the press has become a way to mask bad economic policies. Censorship has been less pervasive when leadership enacted reforms that led to economic prosperity, but when such progress stalls, the regime opts to control the media to curb public discontent. Censorship became even more widespread under current President Xi Jinping, who took over just as the economy began to slow.

Twenty20

Early childhood education and the US workforce problem

Katharine B. Stevens | AEIdeas

Americans increasingly recognize the importance of early childhood. A full 82 percent of Republicans, 86 percent of independents, and 98 percent of Democrats said that "making early education and child care more affordable for working parents" is important for our country. Almost 80 percent of respondents said that public investment should be made equally or more heavily in early childhood than higher education.

More from AEI

Europe focuses too much on regulation and investigation rather than innovation

James Pethokoukis | AEIdeas

Facebook may be the most important health care company on Earth

David Shaywitz | Forbes

Report: School reform often focuses on helping students who struggle. Don't forget about the best and brightest, either.

Jonathan Wai and Frank C. Worrell | AEI

Horizontal drilling is an extraordinary, overlooked technological marvel

Mark J. Perry | AEIdeas

Watch live this morning: Fed Governor Jay Powell on housing finance reform for a stronger economy

Stephen D. Oliner | AEI event today at 10:00 AM ET

The gender pay gap in the Trump White House is actually almost twice what the media is reporting

Mark J. Perry | AEIdeas

Watch: Liberia's education minister on the future of charter schools in the developing world

Nat Malkus | AEI event video

Argentina's 100-year bond signals how little global markets learn from experience

Desmond Lachman | Official Monetary and Financial Institutions Forum

Watch live today: Health savings accounts could point the way toward real health care reform

Thomas P. Miller | AEI event today at 2:00 PM ET

Around the web: Ed Luce's 6 favorite books that predicted the future of politics

Matt Winesett | AEIdeas

AEI cares about your inbox. Want to tailor your AEI subscriptions? Click here and get content that matters to you.

View online | Ensure delivery | Subscribe

American Enterprise Institute
1789 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20036
P: 202.862.5800 | F: 202.862.7177 | www.aei.org

This message is for: jackson.ryan@epa.gov | Manage preferences | Unsubscribe