Re: Devon Energy

Dear Mr. Pruitt:

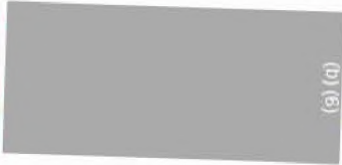

I ask you to re-think your decision to permit Devon Energy to reverse its decision to invest in technology to avoid future emissions of hazardous chemicals. Among the targeted chemicals is benzene, a known carcinogen. Devon Energy has already been found to have committed five separate environmental violations in the past few years. Investment in a system to detect and reduce future leaks is admirable, and permission by the government to eliminate such an improvement is scandalous.

Our children and grandchildren – yours and mine – deserve a clean environment. It is especially puzzling in light of the agreement that had already been reached between Devon Energy and the EPA. You are wrong to permit it.

Yours very truly
