Dear Dr. Kehoe,

The manager of the Ethyl Corporation advised that I inform you of a condition that has effected my brother-in-law who owns a gas station.

In the past two months he developed a dermatitis of both hands, forearms and arms and is gradually spreading to his body presumably due to the gasoline. The rash is of the papular variety, localized mainly on the hands with itching & with no exuding or breaking down of the papules.

I understand that there have been numerous cases reported of skin dermatitis due to contact with tetra-ethyl lead.

I would appreciate any information you can give me with regards to the prevention and treatment of this condition.

Yours truly,

Hyman Colin M.D.
