Dear Sir Thomas:

I wish to express my very deep appreciation for the very kind remarks in your letter of July 2nd. I am somewhat delayed in replying by reason of my absence for some months from the laboratory. It is so rare a pleasure to receive an appreciation of one's efforts, and it is so unusual that a man of your distinction goes to the trouble of so expressing himself, that I am all the more grateful and appreciative of what you have said. I shall take the greatest pleasure in sending you other articles which I and my associates may write from time to time.

Please accept my most cordial greetings.

Sincerely yours,
