Sir Ronald S. Nyholm,
Professor of Chemistry,
University College London,
Department of Chemistry,
Gower Street,
LONDON, W. C. 1.

Dear Sir Ronald,

Thank you for your letter of February 5th and the copies of two statements about alleged hazards of asbestos, sent to you by University College, which were awaiting me on my return to the office this week. I can quite understand your concern in the matter, and I am immediately forwarding copies to Dr. S. Holmes, who acts as the Secretary of the Asbestosis Research Council, and knows far more about this whole subject that I do. Dr. Holmes will, I am sure, send you a summary of the information which is available and which we mentioned at the Vice-Chancellor's Reception.

I greatly enjoyed the refreshing conversations which we had with you at that function, and I know that my pleasure was shared by our Chairman, Deputy Chairman and President.

Yours sincerely,

W. Blakey.
