Then the pick-up will be so great that the demand will not be for jobs, but for workers.

Opposed to Rackets

"That is the land of opportunity we can and should make America. I promise that we can, and under my administration we will, make it such a land of opportunity.

Mr. Toughy—"An unsigned letter from Chicago says 'I am a union elevator operator. No doubt you realize how most of the boys feel after the recent racket exposure. What I would like to know is this. If you are elected president, would you try and eliminate racketeering in unions?' I do not want to sign my name for fear I will be blacklisted."

Mr. Willkie—"I hope the boy who wrote that letter is listening. Certainly, the country's workers need honest help when they are afraid to sign their name to such a question as that young man asks. I want you to know that I shall, as president, use every legitimate power of my office and every influence I can exert, to banish racketeering from every part of American life including labor.

"It is labor's exclusive privilege to choose its own leaders. No president or other public official should seek in any way to interfere with labor's free choice of its own representatives. It is likewise up to laboring men themselves to see that they get men of character as leaders. men who are truly devoted to the interest of labor. Labor does have the right to expect that government will aid in protecting it from racketeers, the same as the government should protect society generally from racketeers. One big reason why any form of racketeering exists today is the evil tie-up between the racketeers and the dishonest political machines in our great cities.
