Asbestos-Cancer Link Seems to Be Stronger

Asbestosis and cancer seem to be closely linked.

In England, Wales and Scotland, more than 50 percent of men having asbestosis at the time of death also had cancer in the chest cavity, Dr. W. B. Buchanan told the Conference on Biologic Effects of Asbestos last week in New York.

A relationship between asbestosis and chest cancer has long been suspected, but now there seems to be little doubt about it, he said.
