SUBJECT OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH ACT OF 1970, PUBLIC LAW 91- 596

The Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 became Federal Law on April 28, 1971. The act provides that all employers furnish a place of employment "free from recognized hazards that are causing or are likely to cause death or serious physical harm" and, comply with standards promulgated by the Secretary of Labor.

Standards to date have been published in the May 29, 1971 issue of the Federal Register. As additional standards are promulgated, they will be published in subsequent issues.

In order to enforce the act, Labor Department officials may enter places of employment to conduct inspections and investigations. If the inspection reveals violations of the act, citations may be issued.

The Company will comply with the law to the fullest extent.

Bulletins will be issued from time to time detailing specific procedures to be followed to ensure compliance with the act.
