Mr. E. A. Garber, Chairman
Harbison-Walker Refractories Company
Pittsburgh 22, Pennsylvania

Dear Mr. Garber:

The enclosed announcement of the Management Conference of Industrial Hygiene Foundation's Twenty-Seventh Annual Meeting is addressed to you personally because I believe it merits your personal attention and attendance.

The greatest asset of any company is its management team. The health of that management team—including your own health—is a matter of primary importance to you.

That is why we feel we were particularly fortunate to be able to obtain that widely recognized authority on the heart, Dr. Paul Dudley White, to lead off this program with a discussion of heart disease as it relates to executives. His presentation and subsequent discussion will be followed by Dr. William P. Shepard, until recently chief medical officer of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who will discuss the maintenance of executive health. That discussion will be followed by comments on the growing importance of industrial hygiene by Mr. J. D. Harper, Vice President for operations of Aluminum Company of America.

This is a conference designed for chief executives as well as for the technicians and Medical Directors.

You are cordially invited to attend the Management Conference October 25 together with your Medical Director, industrial hygiene and other professional personnel.

Sincerely yours,

Blaine B. Wescott

Chairman,
Industrial Hygiene Foundation

P.S.: It would be helpful if you could let me know, on the attached form, whether you expect to attend the Management Conference.
