BATH SPACE

Lack of sufficient storage space can make an otherwise attractive and comfortable bathroom cluttered and inconvenient. However, careful planning and a little effort can convert unused bathroom space into useful storage areas, says the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association.

For example, a lavatory can become a virtual supply house by giving it a countertop and cabinet. The countertop provides a wide, flat surface for holding personal toiletries and the cabinet accommodates towels, linens, soaps, cleansers and other items.

Often, unused wall space behind the door or in a corner will serve as a place for glass or wooden shelves.

Decorating Variety

Themes from Early American to contemporary have been chosen for the decor and furnishing of a new group of 10 model homes at Allport Gardens which go on display next weekend for National Home Week, the builders and developers, Walter Bollenbacher and Louis L. Kelton, reported yesterday.

Furniture and drapery materials from all parts of the country are being brought in for the exhibit homes, which will be decorated by Grace Lawrence, San Diego specialist in this field.

National Home Week, Saturday through Sept. 23, marks the grand opening of the new homes in Unit 9 of Allport Gardens, featuring two, three and four-bedroom models, all with two bathrooms.

The themes to be displayed in the model homes include classic contemporary, Early American, provincial, Oriental, modern and contemporary, said Miss Lawrence.

The new homes are on Zion avenue, west of Waring road, the latter being the main entrance to the new community on the mesa above Mission Valley.
