Hi,

I am working on a story about a lawsuit filed by three conservation and public health groups against EPA for failing to ensure that Florida and other locations across the county have effective plans for cleaning up sulfur dioxide air pollution.

Can you give me a response to this suit. What efforts are EPA taking to deal with this problem? Is the agency concerned about the health impacts of sulfur dioxide pollution on people with asthma and other chronic health problems?.

If you can get back to me by no later than Friday night, I would appreciate it.

Best,

Prakash
