My dear Bob:

I enclose copy of a letter just received from a lawyer in Milwaukee.

I cannot help being just a little suspicious about this letter from an attorney and would suggest that in answering it, you bear in mind the possibility that he may have in the back of his head some question of claims of some kind or other.

Very truly yours,

Graham Edgar.

Gentlemen:

I am very desirous of obtaining information on the effect of gasoline, particularly gasoline containing lead, on the skin. A local distributor of Ethyl gasoline has furnished me with a copy of the rules and regulations for the handling of Ethyl gasoline, and noted that you warn against operations where the skin will come in contact with the gasoline.

Any information in the form of statistics or treatise that you may have, or may refer me to, will be greatly appreciated by me.

Yours very truly,

Robert P. Harland
