Air chief says challenging endangerment finding is possible

Robin Bravender, E&E News reporter

What do you think about the president's tweet about climate change the other day?

I actually didn't even see it. I was on vacation.

It was something along the lines of: Given the cold snap, maybe we need some more global warming.

I would just say go talk to the folks at the White House.

Did you ever think that you be confirmed in this position when you left under the Bush administration?

[Laughs] No. I guess all I would say is, I think ultimately I have [former] Sen. [Harry] Reid [D-Nev.] to thank for deciding to change the rules of the filibuster. That certainly facilitated my return.
