Subject: Interview for NY Times

Hi Enesta,

How are you doing? I'm researching a story for the New York Times' Smarter Living section about how to save money on your heating bill in a rental. I find that there is a lot of information out there for homeowners on the bigger projects you can do (replace your windows, insulate your attic, etc), but we want to focus on changes people can make that are free or low-cost and deliver a measurable return—and that can easily be reversed or removed when they move out.

I was hoping I could interview someone from your team on the subject. It should take about 45 and I can do anytime from 8:30am-4pm today through Wednesday.

Please let me know if this is a possibility!

Thank you,
Ayn-Monique
