Dear Sir:

I asked Mr. Reynolds, your representative in this territory, the following and yesterday told me to write you.

I was unfortunate last September and let considerable of your Presto 68 to 70 octane gasoline with lead in it run over my right leg and up to my waist. Of course I know this gas was always to be watched, etc., but like everyone after it dried off a bit, I considered it was O.K. Well I had on underwear; paid no more attention until a few days later it started to itch, etc. After a while because I never need a doctor, so I tried different oils etc. and when it got so I could not get any relief I went to a doctor and he started experimenting with salves etc. until about January 1st. Well I was getting worse so I went to a younger fellow doctor and after drawing blood from under my arm and large finger, etc., He said next day I had lead poisoning. Well this has been going on since January. A little better than before, but I am all broke out and hurt like everything so Reynolds and I thought perhaps on account of you having so many men working with this gasoline, you could offer me some good advice and remedy.

Yours,

J. F. Sankey, Mgr.
