Dear Dr. Kehoe:

From our investigations there seems to be no book which deals in a modern fashion with the problems of lead poisoning. As far as we know no work has been published since the work by Aub some fourteen years ago.

May we inquire whether you are at work on a manuscript in this field, and if so, whether we might have an outline of its contents and other data concerning it? That is, of course, provided you have not already made other arrangements for publication.

Would you in replying give us a pretty definite idea of the audience that you are writing for?

Sincerely yours,

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY
