STUDIES DEALING WITH THE DETERMINANTS AND MECHANISMS
OF THE BIOLOGICAL ACTION OF ASBESTOS FIBRE

Biological Reaction of Tissue to a Fibre

Kind of Reaction Investigated: Pulmonary fibrosis

Kind and Nature of Fibre: Not given

Animal Species: Human beings

Method of Studies: Clinical and pathological examination including histology

Investigator: Murray, Montague M.

Location: London, United Kingdom

Title: Report of Departmental Committee on Compensation for Industrial Diseases. Minutes of evidence.

Reference: Cd. 3946:127-128, H.M.S.O. London, 1907

Date of Entry: July 1969

Brief Summary of Results: Minutes of the author's testimony before the Departmental Committee on Compensation for Industrial Diseases on one case of asbestosis developed during 14 years of work in an asbestos textile factory, 10 years out of it in the carding room. The patient died of asbestosis in 33 years of age and autopsy was done.

Attached is a list of commodity codes of asbestos-containing products United States Gypsum Company (this defendant) sold which may be utilized with the attached "MS6100 Selected Sales Statistics". The commodity codes include the number and name of an asbestos-containing product. This list is the result of a very time-consuming reconstruction, in anticipation of litigation, of applicable commodity codes. This list, however, may not be entirely accurate for a particular asbestos-containing product.

While each product was assigned a commodity code number, its commodity code number could change from year to year. It was not uncommon for a code number in one year to refer to one product but in another year to refer to a totally different product. Unfortunately, there is no historical index of commodity codes maintained by this defendant. This defendant has relied upon auxiliary sources of information in order to reconstruct this list of codes; however, it cannot be certain that the reconstruction is entirely correct for any particular asbestos-containing product.

In summary, the data on the MS6100 print-out definitely reflect the sales of this defendant's products for the commodity code numbers listed. However, the commodity code number itself may not definitely represent the sales by this defendant of a particular asbestos-containing product.
