these cases, didn't he?

A He may or may not. I mean, it became obvious when I read the history, because since medicine and science was very slow to recognize a hazard, that obviously would be what industry would say.

Nobody told us it was dangerous, how are we supposed to know.

Q I understand, but he told you what their defense was in the case, didn't he?

A I don't know. He may have, maybe not. I honestly don't remember.

Q And you have testified since then for Owens-Corning Fiberglas for a number of times, or a number of times, correct?

A Yes.

Q You testified for Pittsburgh Corning?

A Probably. A lot of cases have five or 20 defendants.

Q You have testified for a company known as Johns-Manville?
