Leila, per our call today here are the follow up items we discussed.

- We are confirmed for Thursday, December 6 at the Spokane Convention Center. We will anticipate a 1:30pm arrival, and be prepared for an earlier arrival.
- As a contingency, we will have a 5:00pm opportunity for the Secretary to open up our exhibit hall with the same remarks.
- If there is anything we can do to provide support for the remaining time that day please don't hesitate to ask. We are also willing to pull together a roundtable of industry leaders at any time.
- Attached is the page from our convention brochure for your approval. The blank column next to the Secretary announce is for our Wednesday speaker TBD. It will most likely be an industry CEO.
 - We will use the same approved format in future Bulletins (Oct/Nov) to our members, on our website (www.miningamerica.org) and Twitter (@miningamerica)
 - We will not be issuing a press release
 - I have included our Communications Manager Anthony Roeber on this email as he will be leading any outreach on AEMA behalf.

Thanks again Leila. Feel free to contact me or Laura.

Ryan Zinke

United States Secretary of the Interior

Ryan Zinke was sworn in as the 52nd Secretary of the Interior on March 1, 2017.

A fifth-generation Montanan and former U.S. Navy SEAL Commander, Ryan Zinke built one of the strongest track records in the 114th Congress on championing sportsmen's access, conservation, regulatory relief, forest management, responsible energy development, and smart management of federal lands.

"As a former Navy SEAL, Ryan has incredible leadership skills and an attitude of doing whatever it takes to win," President Donald Trump said in nominating the former congressman, who built an impressive portfolio on Interior issues ranging from federal mineral leases to tribal affairs to public lands conservation.

Zinke is widely praised for his voting record supporting the Teddy Roosevelt philosophy of managing public lands, which calls for multiple-use to include economic, recreation and conservation. He has pledged to explore every possibility for safely and responsibly repealing bad regulations and using public natural resources to create jobs and wealth for the American people.

As Secretary of the Interior, Zinke leads an agency with more than 70,000 employees who are stewards for 20 percent of the nation's lands, including national parks, monuments, wildlife refuges and other public lands. The department oversees the responsible development of conventional and renewable energy supplies on public lands and waters; is the largest supplier and manager of water in the 17 Western states; and upholds trust responsibilities to the 567 federally recognized American Indian tribes and Alaska Natives.

Zinke was commissioned as an officer in the Navy in 1985 and was soon selected to join the elite force where he would build an honorable career until his retirement in 2008. He retired with the rank of Commander after leading SEAL operations across the globe, including as the Deputy and Acting Commander of Joint Special Forces in Iraq and two tours at SEAL Team Six. Zinke was the first Navy SEAL elected to the U.S. House and is the first SEAL to serve as a cabinet secretary.

Zinke holds a Geology degree from the University of Oregon, where he was an All-PAC 10 football player; a Master's degree in Business Finance from National University; and a Master's degree in Global Leadership from the University of San Diego. He and his wife Lolita (Lola) have three children and two granddaughters. Zinke is proud to be an adopted member of the Assiniboine Sioux Tribe at the Fort Peck Reservation in Northeast Montana.
