

To: Jackson, Ryan[jackson.ryan@epa.gov]
From: American Enterprise Institute
Sent: Mon 6/12/2017 10:09:26 AM
Subject: AEI Today: The election that was Theresa May's Waterloo

The election that was Theresa May's Waterloo

AEI's daily publication of independent research, insightful analysis, and scholarly debate

Reuters

The election that was Theresa May's Waterloo

Desmond Lachman | The Hill

It is said that those whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad. This seems to be all too true of Theresa May. Without any real reason, she took a big gamble by calling a snap election three years ahead of schedule. Then, she managed to make every mistake in the book in fighting that election. In the process, she blew what had appeared to have been an impregnable lead in the polls for her Conservative Party.

Twenty20

How the private sector can lead delivery and payment reform

James C. Capretta | Health Affairs

Employers and other private purchasers of medical services have played an important role in spurring health care delivery system and payment reform. The development of managed care has been accelerated by federal and state policies over the years but originated with private sector purchasers. These models are now being used to improve quality and lower costs in Medicare and Medicaid.

AEI

Understanding Qatar's diplomatic crisis

Michael Rubin | AEI video

On June 5th, 2017, four Arab nations — Egypt, UAE, Saudi Arabia, and Bahrain — cut ties with Qatar and moved to impose diplomatic and economic embargoes. AEI Resident Scholar Michael Rubin explains why these nations have severed diplomatic relations with Qatar and why Qatar thinks the United States will remain an ally.

Reuters

Confronting China on cybersecurity

Claude Barfield | TechPolicyDaily.com

The president and his top advisers should not wait to force a showdown with China over the web of market-closing laws and regulations that are shutting US and other foreign corporations out of China's high-tech sectors. Most specifically, the administration should immediately confront Chinese leaders over the recently enacted cybersecurity law.

More from AEI

Wall Street isn't expecting much from the GOP tax cut plan

James Pethokoukis | AEIdeas

Parsing the facts in the Comey testimony

Ramesh Ponnuru | Bloomberg View

What does Donald Trump look like as a school choice leader?

Frederick M. Hess | Education Next

Breaking down Theresa May's eventful night

Michael Barone | Washington Examiner

How the vaping industry is reshaping the Food and Drug Administration's regulations

Sally Satel | AEI video

Theresa May bet poorly on Brexit

Desmond Lachman | US News & World Report

Taking an optimistic view on automation

James Pethokoukis | AEIdeas

The lessons learned from the UK election

Roger Bate | AEIdeas

RSVP: Rep. Adam Smith (D-WA) on how to counter Putin's Russia

Leon Aron | AEI event on Tuesday at 9:00 AM ET

Put it in your calendar: Rethinking school design for educational equality

Nat Malkus | AEI event on Tuesday at 4:00 PM ET

AEI cares about your inbox. Want to tailor your AEI subscriptions? Click here and get content that matters to you.

View online | Ensure delivery | Subscribe

American Enterprise Institute
1789 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20036
P: 202.862.5800 | F: 202.862.7177 | www.aei.org

This message is for: jackson.ryan@epa.gov | Manage preferences | Unsubscribe