Curt - good morning.

I will be in D.C. next week showcasing a VR technology developed to training energy workers, specifically oil and gas workings. The technology is designed to augment the learning process for high school, college, and new hires. There is also opportunities to use it to educate folks about the energy industry.

Might you have time Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning or early afternoon for a demonstration and discussion.

I'd like to showcase the technology and the work that's been put into the educational components and to discuss the 100 student/user pilot starting next week in Pa, Texas, New Mexico.

Thank you!
