The jinx will be the first in two years.

Bright costumes, tapping heels, and jingling music brought a touch of the old world to Paly High yesterday, when 10 members of the Friday evening folk dance class at the Community Center entertained the student body.

Lt. Edward Carpenter, who started the folk dancing craze at the Center five years ago, served as master of ceremonies and called the square dances. He had arrived home at 10 o'clock the previous evening.

The five couples taking part were Piet Bol and Virginia De Long, Ken Ballard and Gerrie De Long, Buck Pinkerton and Marion Steele, Pete Kelgard and Nancy Sharp, Klaas Bol and Barbara Cabbage.

Virginia, Nancy and Klass are 1944 graduates now attending Stanford.

Final plans have been drafted for distribution of honor cards to reliable seniors, Chester Wrucke, chairman of the senior honor card committee, has announced.

These cards can be used as hall passes and excuses for absences, he explained. They may be revoked at any time, he warned, if the student fails to keep up the standards required.

Seniors wishing cards may secure applications early next month, and if these are passed by the committee and faculty, they can be used about two weeks later.

The committee consists of five seniors elected by the senior council form a group nominated by the commissioners. Members are Maurice Bohne, Gwen Fowler, Randy Hudson, Barbara Working, and Chester Wrucke.

Faculty advisers are Mrs. Edith Duncan, attendance clerk, and Miss Ruth Collins, senior counselor.

Madrono tickets will go on sale after November 1, according to Anne Mosher, editor of the yearbook. Students may buy full payment tickets for $2.25 or pay $1 now and the remainder in the spring, she explained.

Jim Marquis and Missy Huston will conduct the ticket sale drive.

Page layouts are completed, and bindings are being considered at present.

Poster contest has new division for servicemen

Three special art scholarships have been set aside for servicemen in the 1945 Victory Poster Contest of the Latham Foundation for the Promotion of Humane Education, the organization announces.

Another is being awarded in the Mackay division for handicapped contestants.

As usual, 25 art scholarships will be given as supreme prizes in the annual poster contest. These are made possible by the cooperation of leading art schools in the United States and Canada.

The contests have been conducted over a period of 20 years to emphasize kindness to animals and stimulate art education.

Anyone in this community who is interested in winning either a scholarship or one of the 217 prizes in War Stamps and War Bonds may obtain full details by writing to John de Lemos, Box 1322, Stanford University.

Hanna to attend meetings in East

Dr. Paul R. Hanna, professor of education at Stanford University, left today for Battle Creek, Mich., to attend the quarterly meeting of the W. H. Kellogg Foundation to be held October 30 to November 1. He is a member of the Advisory Committee on Education of the foundation.

On November 2 Dr. Hanna will be in New York City to meet with the editorial board of "Building America," a civics magazine widely distributed each month in secondary schools throughout the nation.

The Stanford educator plans to spend November 4-6 in Washington, D. C., conferring with officials of the National Association in his capacity as member of the editorial boards and executive committees of several NEA publications.

He will be back in San Francisco in time to attend a meeting on November 10 of the aviation committee of Governor Warren's newly-created California State Reconstruction and Re-employment Commission.

Dr. Hanna is on leave this quarter from the School of Education.
