THE COURT: Do you wish a two-minute warning, Mr. Ignatowski?

MR. IGNATOWSKI: I think they may take a little longer than two minutes, but I am going to go through them quickly.

It is admitted by the Defendant Owens-Illinois that they were a member of the Industrial Hygiene Foundation which changed its name to the Industrial Health Foundation in 1970.

They were a member for the years, 1936 through 1975.

These were read with respect to the Defendant Owens-Corning, and they were asked, state the medical or scientific medical periodicals which they subscribed during the period 1930 to 1964.

And they responded Journal of Occupational Medicine, Industrial Hygiene Digest, American Industrial Hygiene Association Journal, Journal of Occupational Safety and Health, New England Journal of Medicine, Medical Letter, Archives of Environmental Health, Occupational Safety and Health Reporter,
