

Pelle is a tremendously self-motivated actor today. He's very cheery about the reception that greeted him yesterday when he stepped out in California street. He slipped away from the Granada theater screen, where he is doing impossible things with the laws of gravitation in the "Bone A" sequence into a director and motorist toward the stockroom district. The "Children's Hospital" is the only place in San Francisco where Pelle is not known. He has to be a model of the film industry. Pelle is a tremendously self-motivated actor today. Captain T. J. J. See, United States naval aviator at Mare Island, who headed Professor Albert Einstein as a physicist, has been named. Verification of his claim that he and not Einstein discovered the connection between magnetism and universal gravitation has been found in a German astronomical journal. Einstein on March 17 of this year announced that he had made the discovery and that it was something new in connection with his earlier theory of relativity. "Insulin" Saves Two Patients Near Death; Discovery From Stomachs of Oxen

That "insulin" the newly discovered remedy for diabetes had been used in San Francisco with extraordinary success in two cases that were almost at the fatal stage was revealed yesterday in medical circles.

Following Eastern advice that a cure had been discovered for this sinister curable disease, it was learned that a quantity of insulin had been placed in the hands of local medical men.

PATIENTS RECOVER

Total recovery of two women patients, one of whom was in a state of coma while the other was on the verge of coma, was announced by Dr. Dwight K. Shepardson.

These cases were cared for at the Mt. Zion Hospital, where they came under treatment at the Mt. Zion Hospital and University of California Hospital. Also, several other remarkable results in Dr. Shepardson's clinic.

"Insulin should be described as a 'replenisher' rather than a cure. It puts into the system the element, lack of which causes the disease. Whether it can repair the damage already done is still debatable."

SUPPLIES JUICE

The source of insulin, which was described by Dr. Shepardson as "insulin" in charge of the work at Mt. Zion. It is known to be extracted from the pancreas of an animal, usually a cow or a pig, and is a substance which is secreted by the pancreas. The pancreas is a gland in the abdominal cavity, and it is the source of the insulin. The pancreas is a gland in the abdominal cavity, and it is the source of the insulin.

Hosiery that Satisfies the Eye and the Pocketbook

SOME men say they must have good looking hosiery even though it does seem a bit extravagant. You can hardly blame the man who wears Allen A for thinking their attitude either a bit of a pose or thoughtless buying.

He, for one, finds no difficulty in getting hosiery that not only looks right but gives money's worth in its long service.

In short—style that wears.
