FOOD ADDITIVES AMENDMENT

§ 121.87 Extension of effective date of statute for certain specified food additives as indirect additives to food.

On the basis of data supplied in accordance with § 121.85 and findings that no undue risk to the public health is involved and that conditions exist that make necessary the prescribing of an additional period of time for obtaining tolerances or denials of tolerances the following additives may be used in connection with the production, packaging, and storage of food products, under certain specified conditions, for a period of one year from March 6, 1960, or until regulations shall have been issued in accordance with section 409 of the act, whichever occurs first. The extensions are granted under the condition that a minimum quantity of the additive will be incorporated in the food, consistent with good manufacturing practice.

Substances migrating from adhesives used in food packaging - In addition to the requirements set forth in the introduction to this section, the following additives may be used in adhesives in packaging materials under the conditions that a minimum quantity of the additive from the adhesive will be incorporated in the food consistent with good manufacturing practice while preliminary data show that many of the substances included in the list may not migrate to foods, these are being included pending the completion of additional scientific work involving them.
