

break-in, police reported that some of the men arrested had registered at the Watergate on May 28 and stayed until May 29, and that the Democratic headquarters had been broken into during that period.

In another development Thursday, Alfred Wong, chief of technical security at the White House for the secret service gave secret testimony to the Democrats' lawyer Edward Bennett Williams.

The testimony is part of the Democrat's $1 million invasion of privacy suit against the five men. A federal judge has ordered all depositions in the suit sealed with the court and kept secret pending his order.

CBS-TV News reported Thursday night that Hunt invoked the Fifth Amendment's protection against self-incrimination when he was asked any questions concerning his whereabouts on June 17.

give his deposition to the Democrats Friday.

This week more and more reports are circulating that implicate Liddy in independent, maverick-type operations.

For example, the Los Angeles Times reported Thursday that Liddy suggested the Justice Department bug the offices of the New York Times during the 1971 Pentagon Papers incident.

Liddy was working in the White House at the time for a group charged with the responsibility of investigating leaks to the news media.

The Los Angeles Times said that when the Justice Department lawyers learned that Liddy was serious, they stopped dealing with him.

In addition, sources in the Treasury Department where Liddy worked for Assistant Secretary Eugene Rossides, said Thursday that Liddy developed a reputation for making unauthorized decisions.

The sources cited the April 4, 1971 speech Liddy gave at the National Rifle Association 100th anniversary where he praised the anti-gun control efforts of the NRA.

At the same time his boss, Rossides, was trying to control the so-called "Saturday night special" hand gun.

After this, the sources said, Liddy was "effectively fired."

Board member Raymond Simonds said that he was "very much in favor of the all-year school."

"Any decision won't be popular. I was not in favor at first but I favor it now," said board member Stanley J. Campi.

Board member John Creed said that there has been a lot of imput and this is the best alternative.

Board President Grace again noted that the school board was against double sessions.

HOLIDAY

The predicted death toll of 644 could go higher. It seldom falls below the estimates.

All available California Highway Patrolmen will be on duty from late this afternoon until early Tuesday morning, according to Commissioner Walter Pudinski.

"Our vehicles will be on the road and rolling throughout the critical period," Pudinski said. "They will be in plain sight where drivers cannot help but see them. The patrol's thrust will be on prevention rather than penalizing fringe violators and special emphasis will be placed on wrong way drivers and individuals operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol, narcotics or dangerous drugs."

Teja's motion in superior court for delay of the trial also asked for additional sanctions against Hawk to insure he provides the handwriting samples.

A hearing on the third prosecution motion for the handwriting samples is scheduled for today in Solano County Superior Court, along with a pre-trial conference to discuss selection and instruction of the jury.

A defense motion for discovery of several items of Granting the discovery motion on the condition Hawk provides the handwriting samples was a possible remedy suggested by prosecution during the proceedings Monday.

had been dead about five days.

He said a positive identification must await dental chart examinations and an autopsy which will be done today in Sacramento.

Page said the Sacramento coroner's office has the proper facilities for working on the decomposed remains, exposed to hot sun and water, and Napa does not.

The death could have been from natural causes, or a suicide or homicide. Page said: "I really don't know what we've got here. It can't be decided until after lab tests."

Minor personal items were found in the man's pocket, plus a bed roll and a few supplies.

Page said the man may have planned to stay in the area for a day or two but did not appear to have been actually camping.
