Dear Dr. Kehoe;

We are fourth year students at the Harvard Medical School in the process of writing a public health survey of Akron. Our assignment includes a detailed discussion of the methods which would be applied in this area to the diagnosis and treatment of three selected theoretical cases. One of these concerns a painter who develops the signs and symptoms of lead intoxication while painting a bridge for the State of Ohio.

We have spoken to Dr. Rex Wilson of the B.F. Goodrich Co. and Dr. L.C. Hatch of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. regarding the handling of these cases. Each has stated that he would consult you about the diagnosis and latest methods of treatment, and, has recommended that we contact you for similar information.

We would be deeply grateful for any information you could send us, particularly with reference to the use of Versene.

Thank you very much for your consideration,

Very Sincerely yours,

Frank Austen
