For injuries suffered in a railroad accident in the West Oakland yards, Hugh Loomis Tower, Sr., 23, was awarded $8500 today by a jury in Superior Judge S. Victor Wagler's court.

Tower sued the Southern Pacific Company, charging that his right hand was crushed between two box cars when he attempted to couple them. He complained that the injury was caused by a defective coupler.

The railroadman testified that the accident happened last October 13 at 1:30 o'clock in the morning.
